

DISTRIBUTION OF 1925-26 GRADES IS ANNOUNCED

Engineers Are Given 31 Per Cent "A's"; Percentage for Entire University Is 19.2 for Last Semester

AG COLLEGE IS SECOND

Order of Precedence Is Similar to That of the Year 1924-1925

Of the 12,584 grades received by the students of the university during the second semester of last year, 19.2 per cent were A's and 34.2 per cent were B's, according to the report of distribution of grades just given out by the registrar's office. The number of grades received by students for the second semester of the 1924-25 session was 12,466 and of that number 18.6 per cent were A's and 34.2 per cent were B's.

The College of Engineering again heads the list of colleges in percentage of A's given, 31 per cent of all the marks given in that college being of the highest rank. The other five colleges listed in order of percentages of A's given are: College of Agriculture, 20.8 per cent; College of Arts and Sciences, 16.7 per cent; College of Commerce, 11.9 per cent; and College of Law 11.4 per cent.

It is interesting to note in comparing this report with the one issued for the second semester of last year that the colleges for that year were arranged in exactly the same order in percentages of A's given. Last year the percentage of A's given in the College of Engineering was 30.8; the College of Agriculture, 23.7; College of Education, 21.6; College of Arts and Sciences, 15.1; and College of Law, 9.5 per cent.

COOPERATION IS URGED

The Kernel is just in receipt of the following letter from President McVey concerning the number of "cold" checks which were given for registration fees at the opening of school, and calls it to the attention of the student body:

To the Editor of The Kernel:
The Business Office of the university has been confronted with an increasing difficulty that arises out of the use of checks on the part of students in the payment of their fees. More than 60 students at the opening of the year tendered checks to the

Kernel Will Give Prize For Best Ad

Students Are Urged To Try Their Skill In This Contest

The Kernel, beginning Monday and continuing through Friday, will conduct an advertising contest in which H. E. Byrd, advertising manager of the Lexington Herald, will act as judge. James Shropshire, business manager of The Kernel, announces that the business office will give a prize of $5 to the student in the university who writes the best advertisement about any Lexington business concern.

Each advertisement must be at least two columns wide and five inches long. Any student in the university is eligible to compete for the prize.

In the near future, a similar contest will be conducted in The Kernel in which only the members of Dr. J. B. Miner's advertising class will participate. A prize of $2.50 will be given to the student writing the best advertisement about The Kernel.

Freshmen Entertained

Pep Meeting, Games and Candy Pull Feature Party

A delightful party for the freshmen of the university was given by the Woman's Club of the university in the men's gymnasium Friday evening from 8 until 10 o'clock.

The informal entertainment began with a pep meeting in preparation for the Kentucky-Maryville game. It was conducted by the SuKy Circle. This was followed by a grand march led by Mr. Efflo King. Miss Sarah Blanding, Miss Helen Skinner, and Miss Anna Pherigo assisted in directing the games. One of the outstanding features of the evening was a relay race between the faculty and the students in which the students were victorious.

After the games an old fashioned "candy pull" was enjoyed. Among those assisting in entertaining were Miss Sarah Blanding, dean of women; Mrs. C. R. Melcher, president of the Woman's Club; and Mrs. J. E. Rush, who had charge of the program. There were about 350 guests present.

NORWOODS CELEBRATE FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY

Reception at Patterson Hall Is Given in Honor of Popular University of Kentucky Professor

ON FACULTY 25 YEARS

Attended by their devoted children and congratulated by hundreds of friends, Prof. Charles J. Norwood and Mrs. Norwood celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding receiving informally at their home on Aylesford Place, Tuesday afternoon and with a family dinner at 6 o'clock. In the evening the faculty of the university, with which Professor Norwood has been connected for 25 years, entertained with a reception at Patterson hall in honor of the jubiliarians. Gifts of rare beauty and purses of gold carried with them the hearty good wishes of the friends of a life time. Such spoken greetings as come only from the lips of those whose hearts dictate the sentiments accompanied in no uncertain terms the love and affection in which the honored guests are held. Twice as a benediction of blessings accumulated with the lapse of time that the festive occasion came to a close.

On October 5, in the year of 1876, six miles from Manchester in Clay county, Sarah E. White took Charles J. Norwood "for better or for worse" in the holy bonds of wedlock and began with him the journey on the road of married life. Fifty years later, October 5, in the year 1926, they looked back and recalled the many incidents that have made those years replete with memories, hallowed and cherished while life lasts.

Have Been of Service
Few citizens of Lexington have meant to the community what Mr. and Mrs. Norwood have meant. Theirs have been lives of unselfish service; theirs have been ideals that knew no limitation short of perfection and efforts which started prayerfully, ending always in accomplishment. On the occasion of their jubilee, salutations and greetings bore evidences of the success which has attended the unselfish interest they have shown in the welfare of their fellowman.

While devoting her life to her home and family, Mrs. Norwood found time

Scholarship Reports Are Given Much Notice by Male Students

By Their Prevailing Silence We Observe This; the Girls Take Advantage To Crow Over Their Scholarly Superiority and Fear the Approaching Upheaval of the Sexes.

(By DOROTHY STEBBINS)

We have heard said that the students and authorities paid little attention to the report of the relative scholarship standing of the campus published in a recent issue of The Kernel. It is my private opinion that the men, at least, both saw and heard. They wouldn't be so silent about it if they hadn't. Find the male who would refrain from crowing from daylight to dawn, even if he had nothing more to crow over than a reaffirming of the supremacy of his sex over ours.

In the interest of my long-suffering sisters, permit me to crow. Be it noted that these sage, wise, intellectual men of ours have fallen down for the first time in our history into group -1, guilty of being some fifteen points below the college average; whereas, my contemporaries have skyrocketed themselves into the -12 group, having from 15 to 30 points more than the average—a difference of some forty-five points! Get Busy!

Monday Is Last Day For Dropping Classes

Monday, October 11 has been set as the last day on which a class may be dropped this semester without a grade, according to information received from Dean Boyd's office.

This day has also been designated as the last date on which a student may enter an organized class without the permission of the dean of the college in which the class is conducted.

All students who are contemplating any late changes in schedules are urged to make them at once. No changes will be possible after Monday.

NEW FINDS MADE BY PROFESSORS

Dr. Funkhouser and Prof. Webb Unearth Skeletons of "Stone Grave People" and "Shallow Mound Builders"

DISCOVER NEW RACES

Dr. W. D. Funkhouser, head of the department of zoology at the university and Prof. W. S. Webb, head of the physics department, have discovered three types of ancient peoples who were unknown in the state of Kentucky until the recent explorations and excavations which were made during the summer months under the direction of Dr. W. D. Funkhouser.

The graves of the first type of the three ancient peoples, known as the "stone grave people," were found in Christian county. According to Dr. Funkhouser, these early Americans were very poor as their graves and skeletons were absolutely devoid of ornaments. There were no trophies of war or trinkets to be found in the graves as is usually the case. Each grave unearthed presented a skeleton encased in a narrow tomb of flat stones.

The second type of people which were found to have lived near Fullerton, Ky., are known as the "shallow mound builders." A number of the bodies unearthed were found to be in a cramped or kneeling position. This seems to indicate a religious superstition regarding the position in which the body should be placed for its long rest. In the graves of these people and on their skeletons were found many ornaments, such as bear tooth necklaces and bracelets. A head dress of bear jaws was found on

He served on the staff of The Kernel, and the Lexington Herald, and was editor of the 1926 Kentuckian, year book of the senior class. He was a member of Alpha Delta Sigma, honorary journalistic fraternity; Mystic Thirteen, junior honor organization; and Lamp and Cross, senior honor fraternity. His name was included in last year's issue of "Who's Who in Journalism," a publication devoted to the listing of notable figures of the newspaper world.

BEAUTIES MUST SUBMIT PICTURES FOR CONTESTS

Aspirants For Beauty Section of Annual Are Requested To Have Pictures in by October 11

HELD MAY BE JUDGE

Appointments For Sittings Are Being Made in the Stroller Rooms

A request has gone out from the Kentuckian office to the sororities and dormitories that pictures of all entries in the annual beauty contest be in the hands of the editor of the year book by Monday evening, October 11. No entries will be accepted after that date. The short time limit is necessary in order that the beauties may be judged and their pictures taken for the year book before the photographer leaves the campus. An attempt is being made to secure the services of John Held, Jr., author of the monthly double page comic strip in College Humor, to judge this year's Kentucky's beauties. Mr. Held, who has won some distinction in his field, judged the beauties for the University of Texas two years ago when their annual won the national prize.

To Secure Picture of Ashland A plan is also on foot to secure the use of some of the interiors of Ashland, Henry Clay's home on the outskirts of Lexington, as a background for the pictures in the beauty section of the book.

"Bill" Wolfe, photographer from the Northland Studios, who made the pictures for last year's Kentuckian is taking pictures in the Stroller rooms on the first floor of the men's gymnasium. Students have been slow in making appointments for sittings and

Since the order of the day, now that rush week is over, is to advise, hector, and in any case, to persecute the freshmen, even the featuristic pen, if you will permit the term, must be bent to that end.

Apologies of advice — Frosh, have you ever noticed a rather insignificant structure covering timidly between the Science Building and White Hall? This, tho' upper classmen have no doubt designated it to you as Patterson Hall or the President's Home, is the Library. Of course you have never ventured inside of it except by mistake. Some of the upper classmen are even doubtful of its existence, tho' a lucky venture in who have found that they may peruse "The Saturday Evening Post" free of charge and look at the pictures in some Parisian magazines which might prove naughty if translatable. But seriously—the University of Kentucky does have a library, not a gargantuan edifice, but a rather cozy little place. Scoffers sneer at its size; but why should the powers of the state worry about a larger building when the miniature one we already have reposes in obscurity and neglect? Of course the collegiate world can never be expected to take a library very seriously.

Gridgraph in Gymnasium To Show Indiana Game

Don't Miss It

Much to the joy of those not having the $7.09 to make the trip to Bloomington Saturday to see the Wildcats meet Indiana, comes the announcement from the office of "Daddy" Boles that the grid-graph will be working and that the thrills of the game may be enjoyed for two-bits. Action will start at 3 o'clock in the men's gymnasium. Next to seeing the game itself the grid-graph presents the most graphic reproduction of what is going on. Connected by wires to the field the game is sent in, play by play, and is shown by electric lights on the grid-graph.

STROLLERS TO HOLD TRY-OUTS

Application Blanks Will Be Ready For Distribution Monday in Basement of Science Building

FEE REQUIRED IS $1.00

Stroller tryouts will be held during the week of October 25 in the Little Theater in White Hall. Application blanks for the try-outs will be ready for distribution on Monday, and may be obtained from the typewriting room in the Science building between 9 and 12 o'clock.

The plays which are to be used will be placed upon reserve in the reading room in the Administration building. The officers of the organization have chosen nine short plays, all of them decidedly different, allowing scope for any variety of talent. The plays are as follows: Calistis, House of Cards, Playing With Fire, Embryo, Maker of Dreams, The Noble Lord, The Villain in the Piece, The Traitor, and Fancy Free. Each person desiring to become eligible for Strollers will be charged a fee of $1 to be paid on the date of the try-out.

Miss Lucille Stillwell, Frank Brown and Addison Yeaman have consented to aid the Stroller officers in judging the try-outs. As usual the three best plays will be selected to be presented on amateur night, which will be during the first week in November.

Every year the Strollers put on a play that is chosen, directed and acted by the students of the university, and it is impossible for anyone to take part in one of these plays until he has become eligible. These try-outs will make one eligible and all the freshmen are urged to join this purely dramatic organization.

Three of the former officers of the Strollers have not returned to school and as an election has not been held

Award Will Be Made to Senior Attaining Highest Scholastic Standing for Four Years

CUP GIVEN ANNUALLY

Beginning next June, The Kentucky Kernel will annually present a cup for scholarship to the graduating senior in any college of the university having the highest standing for four years regular scholastic work. The award will be known as "The Kentucky Kernel Cup" and will be presented at the commencement exercises each spring to the winner.

In deciding on the basis of eligibility for the award, The Kernel felt there was a need of encouragement for scholastic endeavor at the university. Several prizes are offered to students for interest in activities and for athletic ability, but there is only one cup for scholarship offered by any organization at present. Mortar Board, honorary senior women's fraternity, awards a cup each year to the first semester freshman girl attending the highest standing in her classes. Alpha Gamma Delta, social sorority presents a cup to the most outstanding freshman girl, and Lamp and Cross, men's senior honorary organization makes a similar award to the most outstanding freshman boy.

These awards are all restricted to the lower classmen, and are given to encourage the student to continue his high standard of work. With the exception of Phi Beta Kappa, Tau Beta Pi, and other honorary fraternities based on scholarship, the senior student who attains a high scholastic standing receives comparatively few awards.

The Kernel Cup will carry with it the recognition of consistent effort during the student's four years at the university and it is hoped will prove an incentive for students to strive for higher standings. The Kernel feels that it is quite an honor to have the highest standing in a class of two or three hundred graduates, and that such an achievement should be recognized.

In addition to this award The Kernel is planning to offer several other prizes in the near future. Details of the proposed contests are now being worked out, but the general plan will be to promote student interest in matters intellectual and cultural.

U. K. Senior Hurt When Automobile Overtakes

Three Companions Escape Injury in Accident on Winchester Pike Sunday Night

William Burkes, 21 years of age, university senior and member of the Kappa Alpha fraternity, suffered a compound fracture of the left leg Sunday night when the automobile in which he and three companions were riding, overturned about five miles from Lexington on the Winchester pike.

Sam Look, Richard McIntosh, and Henry Mattox, who were with Burkes suffered no serious injuries, but it was necessary to give Look and Burkes treatment at the Good Samaritan hospital. McIntosh and Mattox, also students at the university, are members of the Kappa Alpha fraternity. Burkes said that traffic was heavy and when they were obliged to stop suddenly to avoid hitting another car Look applied the brakes but the front ones seemed to grip more quickly than the rear ones and spun the car around, turning it over.

This is only one of many accidents on the Winchester pike caused by heavy traffic.

TEST GRADES AVAILABLE

Students may obtain their intelligence test records, if they failed to ask for them at the time of the test, by calling at Dr. Miner's office, 202 Neville Hall. The scores have been mailed through the university post office to those who requested them.

'CATS TO CLASH WITH INDIANA AT BLOOMINGTON

Game Tomorrow Brings Representatives of Two Grid Conferences Together; Indiana Rated High

KENTUCKY IS RIGHT

Hoosiers and Wildcats Both Won Opening Contests Last Week

(By WARREN A. PRICE)
Strong representatives of two of the mightiest football conferences of the United States will clash tomorrow when the Kentucky Wildcats, of the Southern conference, and Indiana University, of the Western Conference, meet at Bloomington in one of the most crucial football contests to be played in the mid-west.

Indiana Is Good
For the last four years Indiana has served as a stepping stone for Big Ten teams and has had little difficulty in finishing the season well down in the Western Conference standing. But conditions have changed at the Hoosier institution. A new head coach, Pat Page, was brought from Butler to build a winning football eleven. And from all reports Page has succeeded and is presenting to Indiana this year the best team that they have seen for years. Depauw, their first enemy, was easy meat for the Crimson last Saturday, being beaten by a top-heavy score of 31 to 7.

Indiana's aggregation is light but very fast. The first string team averages but 160 pounds, with only one real heavyweight on the squad. The

ELECTIONS TO BE FRIDAY

Elections of presidents and vice presidents of the four classes will be held next Friday, according to an announcement made by Arch Bennett, president of the men's student council, following a meeting of the council held at noon yesterday. Nominations must be in the form of petitions signed by not less than 25 members of the class in which the nominee is a candidate for office, and these petitions must be turned in at Dean Melcher's office by 12 o'clock noon next Wednesday.

Tradition at the university requires that the presidents of the respective classes be men and vice presidents women, and this custom will be followed again this year, according to members of the student council.

It is expected that only one man from each college will be nominated

HOMECOMING

With the results of the first football game of the season fresh in the minds of all graduates and former students of the University of Kentucky each and every person who ever has watched the blue clad Wildcats pit their strength and skill against an opposing eleven will begin to wish to get back at least once this season. Each one will automatically think of seeing the annual clash between the Wildcats and the Centre College Colonels. The game this year is being played at home and it has been designated as the homecoming game. Already Alumni from all over the United States have signified their intention of being at home to see the Wildcats triumph over the Colonels for the first time on home ground for many years. This will be a day for the Alumni. There will be old friends that you have not seen in years. There will be the best football game of the season, and that night there will be the best Alumni dance in the history of the association. Make your plans now. Get your seats at once. It is going to be a day that you will not want to miss and one that you will not soon forget. Remember! November 20.

THE LOST LIST

In almost every issue of the Kernel will appear a partial list of those graduates and former students of the University of Kentucky whose addresses are not known by this office. This list is run under the heading "Alumni Lost List." It is run in the Kernel for the express purpose of obtaining the addresses of those alumni who have not been in touch with the association for some time. We know of no better way of obtaining them than through those who were in the university with them.

Some of these alumni have at times been in the association but in moving about they have been lost.

To have a perfectly functioning organization of the Alumni of the University of Kentucky, as well as any other college or university, it is necessary to have the addresses of all the alumni of the institution. The Alumni office is working all the time toward an organization that functions perfectly and for this reason we are again calling the attention of all the Alumni to this lost list. Read it each week and when you see a familiar name find out where that person is and let us know. The Alumni office and that individual both will be grateful to you if you do.

SOMETHING TO EMULATE

Mrs. R. C. Wilson, (Olline Pierce Cruickshank, '11) of Schenectady, N. Y., permanent secretary of the class of 1911 in a recent letter to this office enclosed a check for her dues to the Alumni Association and also one from the Rt. Rev. William T. Capers, D. D., former dean of Christ Church Cathedral of Lexington who now is Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of West Texas and is living in San Antonio. The Reverend Capers also is a member of the Class of 1911. Mrs. Wilson long has been one of the most active and interested members of the Alumni Association and is the most efficient permanent class secretary of the association. At the present she is writing a personal letter to every member of her class urging them to come into the association. For several years she has been keeping in touch with the different members of her class in many ways. By the work of the class secretaries much interest in the Alumni Association can be aroused and held and this Association would be most fortunate if more of the permanent secretaries would become as active and interested as Mrs. Wilson.

BUREAU IS AID TO U. K. GRADUATES

Placement Bureau of College of Education Places 15 Graduates in Good Positions in State

NO COST TO APPLICANTS

Fifteen graduates of the University of Kentucky, including those who received their degrees in June and several attending the summer session, have been placed as teachers for this year in schools and Kentucky and other states by the Placement Bureau of the College of Education, according to Mrs. Margaret Masner Grasty, director of the bureau.

Alumni Office to Seek Pictures for Gallery

Old Timers Asked for Photos of Teams, Classes and Students

A move is to be started within the next few weeks to obtain a collection of pictures both old and new that will be of interest to the Alumni of the University of Kentucky. This collection of pictures is to be placed in the Alumni office at the university and arranged in chronological order in a cabinet, that will be open always for inspection.

All pictures of old athletic teams, student groups, student activities and university officials will be sought in this move for the establishment of the picture gallery. The older the pictures the better they will suit the purpose. Photographs of the university, students and teams of the last few years are available here at the university and these will be easily obtained. However, there are a great number of teams, student bodies, and classes that have been gone from the university for years and it is for pictures of these that an especial effort will be made.

Alumni who have copies of old pictures can greatly aid this move by lending to this office the copies of any pictures that they may have. The best of care will be taken of the pictures in case of a loan and they will be returned to the owner in the same condition that they are received.

This collection will be of great interest to all Alumni who visit the university as well as to the students. Every Alumni is called on to assist this office in the obtaining of these pictures.

"The Washington Chapter of the Alumni Association held its first meeting on September 27th.

"A very satisfactory number of Alumni were present and plans were discussed for a rather full year.

"The club intends to hold monthly luncheons as the initial step in promoting the proper spirit of cooperation. The first luncheon will be held at the University Club at 12:30 o'clock on October 20th. Judge Charles Kerr, who is now counsel for the American Agent in charge of Mexican Claims, will be the guest of honor.

"Sincerely yours,

"J. I. MILLER."

A REGISTER OF ACHIEVEMENTS

Beginning with the 1927-28 session, the University of Kentucky will offer a curriculum leading to the awarding of the degree of doctor of philosophy to those who successfully complete it. The establishment of such a course of study was authorized at the last meeting of the board of trustees and details pertaining to such establishment are now being planned.

The board of trustees is to be heartily commended for the action they have taken in thus advancing the university academically. It should and will be a matter of pride to faculty and students to be connected with the only university in Kentucky and one of the four institutions in the whole South to award the much-coveted Ph. D. degree.

As this latest step of advancement is entered in the ever-growing register of its achievements, it is a source of distinct pleasure for those who have the interests of the institution deeply implanted in their hearts to glance over the book and note the number and importance of the achievements entered thereon in the past two or three years.

Seldom a week goes by that at least one such achievement is not chronicled thereon and such ones have been made the past few years as have been dreams cherished for years by university officials.

The establishment of a Phi Beta Kappa chapter at the university, the housing of the Law college in its own modern building, the recognition by the war department of the university as a "distinguished university" in matters military, the construction of new buildings, offering of additional courses of study, and other improvements too many to enumerate here, climaxed by this latest step of progress in the awarding of the Ph. D. degree, tell the story of progress, great and deserved.

Truly the university is "coming into its own."

"WELL DONE"

A significant social event of the current session was the celebration on Tuesday evening by faculty and other university folk, of the golden anniversary of the wedding of Dr. C. J. Norwood and Mrs. Norwood.

The occasion was one in which expressions of affection were numerous and sincere from those whose privilege it has been to know and associate with this charming couple in the many years that Dr. Norwood has been connected with the university.

In season and out of season through the years that have marked his connection with the University of Kentucky, Dr. Norwood has not let pass one opportunity to disclose his perfect loyalty to the institution, nor has he failed to stamp the impression of his outstanding character on the young men and women who have come under his influence.

As he has gone about his work of training American youth for better manhood and womanhood, Dean Norwood has been blessed as have been few men with a companion who has perfect understanding of the hopes and ideals of her mate. Queenly in the fine graces of maternal womanhood, kindly, thoughtful, generous, giving of herself at all times for the welfare of others, Mrs. Norwood has endeared herself both to members of the university faculty and to thousands of alumni who have come in contact with her.

Life with its multitude of vicissitudes, its countless obligations and trials, holds nothing more beautiful than opportunity to inspire youth with noble ideals and to induce them to lead lives full of service. And so as these two people, not old in the sense in which we so often count age, but merely matured in service to their kind, pass peacefully on together toward that place where the sun is setting in the west, they take with them the gratifying assurance that they have done this in full round measure and likewise the good wishes of countless thousands.

THE FIRST GOAT

In last week's issue The Kernel's cartoonist and feature writer imbued by some clairvoyant power turned prophetic and predicted dire defeat for Maryville's Mountaineers in the opening football game of the season. Evidently neither of these two are cut out for weather prophets since their prophecies were accomplished and in a manner most gratifying to the supporters of the Blue and White. Truly, Maryville was the first goat and old Mr. K. Wildcat administered to the impudent neophyte who dared to defy him, a sound paddling.

Prospects for a brilliantly successful season took on a rosy hue at the university following Saturday's game. Granted that a little more practice is needed to polish and smooth the actions of the team, this is a relatively small matter which will be taken care of in this week's practices. The team showed up exceptionally well Saturday for an opening game and old-timers are already predicting great things for the '26 Wildcats—to all appearances the mightiest eleven that has represented the university for many years.

This year the university enters upon the football season with the most difficult schedule, probably, it has ever faced. Great opportunities lie before the school to gain wide recognition in athletic circles.

And as the team goes forth to conquest on home field and foreign, the student body will play no little part in the combats. Cheering, "rooting," loyal student support is an important ingredient in the composition of a winning team. University of Kentucky students have always supported their teams, and this year in the desperate struggle with mighty opponents, each member of the university team will fight ever harder because of the knowledge that with him always is the whole-hearted support of his college mates, win or lose.

DESERVED RECOGNITION

Dean Anderson of the College of Engineering has called attention of The Kernel to a paper read by Dr. J. E. Rush, head of the department of hygiene and public health, before the last meeting of the American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers and which the society has had reprinted and distributed throughout the country.

The paper read by Doctor Rush is entitled "A Rational Basis for Ventilation" and immediately upon its publication it attracted nation-wide interest among engineers and public health officials.

The Kernel has for some time watched with interest the work of Doctor Rush. Not only has he worked zealously in improving his department at the university, but he has always been willing, indeed eager, to do anything that lay in his power to advance the health interests of the community. It is, therefore, with sincere pleasure that The Kernel now notes the recognition and honor that has come to Doctor Rush through his paper on ventilation.

WHEN METHUSELAH TURNED

From Liberty Magazine

And it came to pass that when Methuselah was 65 years old and had been begging for twenty years he appeared before Enoch and said:

"Dad, the kids won't pay any attention to me. I told them to look before they leapt into matrimony and here three of them eloped last night."

And Enoch, his father, being old and full of wisdom, replied, saying: "Uh huh! Well, when you get old you won't expect any sense from your kids. I never see much in you."

And, when he was 187 years old, Methuselah begat Lamech, and when Lamech was going on fifteen, Methuselah strove to advise him, saying:

"Lam, I'm nigh onto two hundred years old, and I've seen a lot. Listen to the voice of experience and stay away from the gals."

Thereupon Lamech gave Methuselah the ha-ha and wed with five of the gals; the result being Noah and many others.

And it came to pass that when Lamech was 220 years of age he called Noah aside and said:

"Listen to the voice of experience and don't marry until you can afford to keep a wife."

Noah waxed merry and gave Lamech the horse laugh and proceeded on his way with the flappers. And Lamech tore his beard and went to Methuselah, saying:

"Pop, that young buck, Noah has the marriage bug and he isn't earning his keep."

"Uh huh!" said Methuselah. "Seems like I've heard such complaints before."

"But this is different!" wailed Lamech. "He won't listen to reason."

And Methuselah sighed and said:

"Oh, all right! I'll talk to him. Not that it will do any good."

And Methuselah spake unto Noah, saying:

"Boy, I'm 92 years and some months old and have had a lot of experience. Better wait until you can keep a wife before you get married."

"And Noah opened a jar of raspberries for Methuselah and the result was Sham, Ham, and Japhet."

And in the days that followed Noah came rushing to his grandfather, crying aloud:

"The flood is coming! The waters will cover the world."

And Methuselah filled his pipe and grunted.

And Noah shook him, crying aloud:

"Gramp, you must help me spread the alarm and save the people. They won't believe me."

"They wouldn't," said Methuselah. "And they won't believe me. They've got to learn for themselves. Let 'em drown."

And, having reached the fullness of wisdom and discovered the futility of advice, Methuselah laid him down and died at the age of 969 years, thereby avoiding the wet spell.

We don't like to complain, but we can't help but wonder what the fair ones are going to do now that rushing season is over.

RELIGIOUS DISCUSSION

Dr. J. Archer Gray, pastor of the Maxwell Presbyterian church, is the writer of the following article, the third in the series being printed weekly in The Kernel. The Sunday school lesson for this week is taken from Numbers 13:23-33 and Dr. Gray's article pertains to this lesson.

The Report of the Spies

This is the first instance in history where a party of engineers was sent out to make a survey of a new territory. They did not have the scientific instruments we use today, but they succeeded admirably with the natural tools bestowed upon them by the Creator.

These 12 men were hand-picked, one from each of the 12 tribes, each a representative man, selected from a standpoint of ability, courage, character, citizenship, and judgment.

They were sent to study the land of Canaan, and to bring back to the people a report of conditions as they existed there. Their report was to be a true thesis and was to include the topography of the land, its trees, its dimensions, and its inhabitants, including their number, history, industries, religion, mental and physical development, whether warlike or peaceful, their armies, food supplies, implements of warfare, and in a general way, just how hard or easy it would be to overthrow them and take their lands.

Had No Enthusiasm

The band went forth, with no great enthusiasm for the project. Moses had commanded this survey and he was old, in his dotage, and inclined to be arbitrary, as they thought. What was needed was a new leader, one who was up-to-date, with new ideas, one who was abreast of the times. But they made an investigation after a fashion, each man going his way according to his ability, and after completing their work, met together to decide upon the sort of report they would bring in.

In committee meeting the report was most promising. The land was everything Moses said it was, but—and here is the first time in Biblical history where the little-big word "but" entered in—was it the right time to embark upon such an enterprise? They forgot that they were but a committee of investigators, that they must not editorialize on their thesis, and that the decision of their future actions was in the hands of a Higher Power. So they brought in a discouraging report, the land was fertile, the waters were good, the country rich in possibilities, "but," the inhabitants were warlike, giants, and their civilization and development such as to make their committee seem like grasshoppers both in their own sight and in the sight of others.

"As a man thinketh in his heart so is he," was the statement of one Biblical writer who knew. These men had grasshopper hearts, yet even grasshoppers can overrun a farm and drive the farmers to ruin. Elbert Hubbard once said, "If you can't work up enthusiasm about your jobs drop it and let some other man who will do it right have a try at it."

Lessons to Be Learned

There are just a few lessons to be learned and applied. Have your heart in your work or don't enter into it. Be faithful in doing with your might what your hands find to do. Remember that you are not the final arbitrator of the actions of the whole body. These men were forced to remain in the wilderness for forty years longer because of their direction and not until the last man had died and was buried, did the children of Israel enter the promised land. The lesson today ought to make us think as it is the first time in the Bible we learn of the sins of the fathers being visited upon the children to the future generations. Our deeds today, no matter how trivial they may seem to be, are another link in a chain that in days to come will bind our children.

These men afterwards repented with bitter tears and deep regret, else unless they had confessed, the intrigue would never have been known. But even with a confession of wrong doing, the penalty is not "in the least lessened," for like a stone tossed into the stream, its ripples go in ever widening circles till they reach the farther shore.

With the hemispherical integrator the illuminating engineers measure light intensities and distribution. These laboratory findings are practically applied to improve our everyday illumination.

When the sun goes down

More than 350,000,000 incandescent lamps, with a combined light of nine billion candlepower, make city streets, stores, and homes brighter than ever before.

In bungalow or mansion; workshop or factory; dormitory or auditorium, there is no excuse for poor illumination. We have cheaper and better lighting in the electric lamp than ever before; for the dollar that bought 1,115 candlepower-hours of light with the carbon-filament lamps of 1886, now buys 16,200 candlepower-hours of light with the MAZDA lamps.

Not only more light, but correctly applied light, is the order of the day. The electric lamp, with its flameless yet highly concentrated light source, lends itself ideally to reflectors, shades, and screens. It is controlled light—safe light. And illumination becomes an exact science.

During college days and in after life, correct lighting must ever be of paramount importance to the college man and woman. Good lighting is the worthy handmaiden of culture and progress.

ROMANY PLANS
NEW DEVICES

Lighting and Prompting Features Are Novel and Up-to-Date; Curtain May Be Dropped Three Ways

MISS FOSTER TO DIRECT

Among many new features which will be included in the new Romany theater now under construction, the lighting system is one which represents to the greatest degree the trend in the building of modern playhouses. This theater will be equipped with a system of lighting known as eclectic, which has been used with great success in modern European theaters.

Professor Sax and John Tigert, former electrician of the Romany, were singularly fortunate in being shown through the Burg theater in Vienna, of which Max Reinhardt is director. The magnificent production, "Peer Gyn" was on, and the entire nine scenes were run through by the stage manager, so that Professor Sax and Mr. Tigert might have an opportunity to become thoroughly acquainted with the apparatus used there. They were also shown through the famous Art theater in Rome, whose director is the well known Lingo Perendella, where they observed the various apparatus for lighting and the acoustics.

Unusual Lighting System
In the Romany, the dimer system will control all lights on the stage. Batteries of small spotlights can be directed on any part or parts of the stage, while the rest of it can be kept in any degree of darkness or light desired. Through these, faint beams of light strike the players from several sources, thus doing away with objectionable shadows. Other lights, indirectly reflected from ground glass mirrors or satin aluminum plates will produce a soft glow, in which one tone is dissolved into another. This same system with rearrangement is capable of producing strong lights and darks, when Rembrandt effects are desired.

Most of the lights on the stage are to be projected from the loft over the auditorium so that the electrician will be able to see directly, or through mirrors, all parts of the stage and the effects obtained. In most American theaters the electrician is in doubt about this. The lights in the auditorium of the theater will have for their shades, large masks fashioned from wrought iron.

Curtain Works in Three Ways
The new Romany curtain is planned along novel lines. It will be possible for this curtain to open or close in three entirely different ways. It may be drawn up and lowered as in the ordinary theater, drawn open or closed as in the former Romany, or be draped from the corner. The advantages of the different methods used in closing, are that in some

THE LATCH STRING'S OUT

It sure was! From the fields and from the marshes, from Lime and from Maxwell, from huge apartment hotels and from homey, though aristocratic, domiciles came men, flocks of 'em, herds of 'em, droves of 'em, to our open house, we I Tappa Kegs, don't cha know? Tall men, short men, lean men, fat men, but all collegiate from their bright and gaudy ties to their flappy trousers.

That sounds very nice (Thank you, I presented myself with flowers) but it wasn't quite as cracking as it sounds. First thing done was to get 'em introduced, all the sheep shifting from one peg to another while some one said "Miss Bumgardner, Mr. Goo," "Miss Superko, Mr. Treblecock," etc. Well, after they get that operation over with, Mr. Goo and Mr. Treblecock with all the rest of the male specimens exercise their eyes looking for a place to rest their weary bones (having already been to five other open houses and having five more to make).

Be seated, please. Fold your hands (don't twiddle your thumbs; it isn't being done). If you can find a stray string on your being to fool with, you will feel more comfortable, or if you are lucky enough to have some pennies to jingle, that helps. Coughs! Clearing of throats! Ahem!

"Nice day today."

"Yes, lovely, looks like rain, though."

"Yeh, be a nice day tomorrow," adds Akkie, "if it doesn't rain."

Now that the weather problem has been thoroughly discussed and settled, silence! Embarrassing silence! As there are no pins to be dropped—being too precious in a sorority house to be lost, one can hear the breathing of the young things—peculiar noises around the region of the stomach, gulp, gulp, all that sort of thing.

Brave Mr. Triplecock, "Great game yesterday. State has a fine team."

Hotly-contested discussion follows on football and why. Akkie ends that subject in which so much can be said scenes, it is necessary for the effect planned that the curtain be dropped instantly in what is known as the "quick drop." Others require a slow curtain, and at times the curtain fall should reveal one character, obliterating all other actors, for which the curtain undraped in folds from the corners is ideal.

Prompting Inaudible to Audience

The prompting always an important feature of every theater, will be done by a device which is an entirely new project, and has never before been used on any stage. The prompter will be seated under the stage, so as to be able to observe all parts of the stage through a series of mirrors. He will prompt by reading the lines into a dictograph which will be furnished by a triplicate device hidden in various of the stage properties at three points on the platform, by means of which the actors can clearly hear the prompting while it is inaudible to the audience.

The acoustics of the Romany are arranged with non-resonant walls, through they catch the sounds from the stage, so that a whisper there will be carried with perfect clarity to the auditorium, cause no echo in the theater.

The latest American Little Theaters are very much in advance of either the English or older European ones, in the matter of equipment and fixtures, especially as regards lighting and stage craft in general. The Romany management, with Miss Dunster-Duncan Foster as managing-director under Professor Sax, is doing all in its power to provide for the students and people of Lexington a modern, unique theater, which will have for its attractions such productions as will be of interest and benefit to them.

BOBBY JONES DEFEATED IN EXHIBITION

(By RALPH CONNELL)

Bobby Jones, the idol of Atlanta, the laughing light-hearted lad of the links has added, by his recent visit, the capital of the Blue Grass the cities that acclaim him the most popular amateur golfer in the world today.

Jones came to Lexington on the invitation of the Ashland Golf club where he gave an exhibition match Saturday morning for the benefit of the Children's Home at the Ashland course.

Bobby arrived in Lexington Friday morning, accompanied by Watts Gunn, his playing partner and very close personal friend, and his mother, Mrs. R. P. Jones, Sr. The party was met by Scott Hudson, former Lexington trotting horse man and friend of the Jones family. After breakfasting at the Phoenix hotel the party was taken on a tour of the famous Blue Grass. Under the direction of Mr. Hudson, Bobby was shown some of the finest thoroughbred stables in Kentucky, among them being the historic Idle Hour Stock Farm Colonel E. R. Bradley, sponsor of the Ashland Golf club and dean of Kentucky sportsmen.

Although Jones did not win the exhibition match, he won the good will of the largest, most enthusiastic gallery that ever assembled at an exhibition of the mastery and art of the Play the Game Right!

TIPS ON FOOTBALL STRATEGY AND TACTICS

by Andrew J. Oberlander, Halfback
Dartmouth College

Successful forward passing depends largely on three things—coolness and skill in getting the ball off, precision in sending it to just the right spot so that the receiver won't lose time or be confused, and deception of the other team as to the fact the game in Lexington. One feature of the match was the long, almost perfect drives made by Jones, with seemingly little effort. Both Jones and Gunn executed some very difficult shots in an exceedingly capable manner.

At the conclusion of the match Jones and his party went to the trotting events, but due to the condition of the track the races were not run.

Bobby was expected to attend the Kentucky-Maryville football game as the guest of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity, but never having witnessed the races, he preferred to spend the afternoon witnessing this sport.

play is going to be a pass.

Last fall Dartmouth kept two teams working for an hour every practice season, just perfecting those three elements of the forward pass (and incidentally perfecting the defense, for when Team A was passing Team B was trying to break the passes up). Our open game was effective because we spent so much time on every detail of it.

Let's see what that first element means—coolness and skill in getting the ball off. There's just one thing that will make a good forward passer of a fellow, and that's practice—a lot of it! The boy who wants to learn to pass must spend some time in the spring, and some more in the summer, on his passing. He might as well do some indoor work in the winter, too. "Red" Grange taught himself to pass by hard practice all through one summer.

The first thing to learn is the right way to hold the ball. The grip I've found most successful is one with my finger-tips across the laces of the ball, my thumb below and toward the rear. When my arm is drawn back for a pass, the ball is just about balanced in my hand, long axis nearly level and forward end pointed straight to the front. This is a grip most passers can use—it doesn't take a hand as big as that of the famous "Brick" Miller of California to hold a football properly. My own hand is about the average size.

The fellow with the short hand, or unusually short fingers, usually allows the ball to lie in his hand, getting it back in throwing position by carrying it across his body with both hands

In either case the pass itself is about the same. A football is thrown a good deal like a baseball—with a fast, powerful overarm motion which propels the pigskin with very little arc. Always remember this—let go of the ball while your hand is high. By doing that you're making it a lot harder for the opposing forwards to interfere with your throw. I've seen young passers who used a low side-arm throw—and could not figure why so many of their passes were blocked!

Your thumb lets go of the ball first, and the fingers with their grip across the lacing, give it the even spin that is so important.

Coolness—that means throwing the ball when you are ready, not letting the other fellows rush you into bad throws, making up your mind just where you want to send it. Of course, your team must be able to block out opposing forwards. Coolness is another thing that comes of practice and experience.

And it works right in with the second element I named—precision in sending the ball to just exactly the right spot.

In spring practice at Dartmouth we used to throw footballs at targets with holes in the center. In the summer work I used to do to get in condition I often got boys to act as targets—they'd hold their hands in front of the chests, or above their heads, or in any of a dozen positions, and I'd keep pegging away until I became pretty sure of hitting the mark. All of that was to develop precision—without it a chap can't be a good passer.—The American Boy.

SEEN FROM

By Hoover

the PRESSBOX

Inspired efforts to win national attention through the medium of their intersectional ventures will be made by the University of Kentucky Wildcats tomorrow afternoon. As is usually the case, the odds are against them storming the fortress of Pat Page's scrappy Indiana eleven. It will mark the first game between Kentucky and Indiana for several years and naturally the southern gridiron world will await with expectancy the news of the battle.

These grads no doubt recall how in 1918 Kentucky's valiant band of Blue warriors clipped the wings of the Crimson, 23 to 7, in Bloomington and astounded the turf enthusiasts of the Southern and Western Conference in doing so. Not given hardly a show against the brute power and stamina of the Indians, they went forth from their kennels to earn the victory. In 1918 the Hoosiers defeated the Wildcats on the local battlefield, 21 to 0, in a memorable game.

And why shouldn't tradition hold true this time? Let cold facts be placed into discard and tradition elevated to the pinnacle of public opinion. There was no reason, save elevation of the fightmaster, scratchmaster Wildcats anybody ever saw at the height of their games, why Kentucky bested Indiana in 1918, and as far as we are concerned this should be a good reason why Kentucky should be awarded the laurel wreath this time.

Those who partook of the feast at Stoll field last Saturday afternoon probably understand by this time what we mean when we say that we saw the most polished team, offensively and defensively, that we have seen in the four years that we have followed the destinies of the Wildcats. There was that old drive, pretty interference, excellent line play and the earmarks of just about the best coaching possible.

By this, however, we are not predicting that Kentucky will have a world-beating football team this year. A million and one things can happen between now and the close of the season, but should this team remain in the same condition as it was last Saturday, it is bound to improve as the days go by and it is not so difficult to say that with all things favorable it will reach a position which other Kentucky elevens have failed to reach in the past five or six years.

And at that, we may be too optimistic. There is the mediocrity of Maryville to contend with, though we are not trying to distract from the victory or to cause any discomfort for the Highlanders. But all things considered, it must be admitted that Maryville was not an Indiana, or a Washington and Lee or even a V. M. I. by any means. As has often been pointed out, a fair team will look like a million dollars against one inferior in class, although assuredly Kentucky can stick her thumbs in her vest and crow just a little when her varsity stays in the game for less than two periods and rolls up 25 points just as they please against such a defense as Maryville did put up.

But as we said last Thanksgiving, "It won't be long." (And by the way it wasn't then). We shall see around 5 o'clock tomorrow and, one and all, let's hope for the best. Just because Indiana is a "Big Ten" team is no reason why she is unbeatable. Even Harvard gets whipped into insignificance by a heavier and much better Geneva team and as to the result tomorrow, as far as I see from here, it is an even money shot, take your choice.

Coach Fred uncovered a little human keg of nails who looks like a real coming star in Al Portwood Saturday. He reminded us so much of Johnny Evans in Johnny's balmy days by his jumping, squirming tactics in eluding the Highlander tackles. Although Portwood was not in the fray very long, he made himself prominent enough while he did see action and it would not be any surprise whatsoever to see him face Indiana at the kick-off tomorrow.

Someone said there was a Hoosier scout here for the week-end—just snooping around. But this is enough proof that the Crimson is not taking the Kentucky team lightly. In fact from all authoritative reports, Pat Page has been preaching Wildcats to his proteges morning, noon and night since the practice season opened. Pat has laid his plans and he realizes it would be a crime to have a Blue Grass team thwart them.

Poor Centre! They're still preaching spirit, spirit, spirit, straight, place and show over there, but here's what we gleaned at the tail-end of an advance story about the Centre-Wesleyan game: "A carload of 30 enthusiastic Centre rooters are expected to see the game."

Yes, poor, poor Centre! Alabama upset the dope bucket in the South last Saturday by trimming the Vanderbilt Commodores to a fare-

M. E. Potter, Illinois Grad, Is Selected As Instructor

Non-Varsity Letter Makers Are Eligible For Competition; Letter Will Be Given Man Making 15 Points

(By WAYMAN THOMASSON)

Intra-mural athletics, under the direction of M. E. Potter, the new physical education director from the University of Illinois, are assuming a new aspect at Kentucky this year. In every line of sport, except football, both individual and team competition will be held.

The first sports to be indulged in will be tennis and track. In tennis there will be a tournament in which each fraternity, class or club may enter two doubles teams and two singles players. Also six players independent of either of the above organizations may enter the tournament and compete for the cups and medals which are offered to the winners. A cup will be given to the winning team and medals to each of the winning players. There will be a small entry fee and those players who win in the tryouts will be eligible to enter the tournament.

In track a field meet will be held in which any student who has NOT won a varsity letter will be eligible to enter. Any organization may enter an unlimited number of men. As in tennis individual entries are allowed. The meet will be held early this fall and medals will be given to the winners of each event. The tennis tournament will also be conducted in the near future.

In all other sports which will be played later on in the year Mr. Potter is an able coach. He is a good boxer and wrestler and will give instructions in the same. Basketball leagues will be organized as soon as tennis and track are dropped from the schedule of sports. At the same time the boxing and wrestling teams will be organized and conducted in the same manner as the other sports. A small entry fee will be charged in every sport in order to help defray expenses.

According to Potter, the awarding of medals and cups to the winning players and teams should create great interest in the student body. He says that every able-bodied male student in the university should have pep enough to get out and enter this competition in intra-mural athletics if he is not indulging in a varsity or frosh sport. To create further interest letters will be given to the players who win 15 points, five points in three different sports.

Vaults, supposed to be of Egyptian origin, have been found near the site of Fez in Morocco, and are supposed to be vestiges of a town destroyed about the year 1000 B. C.

KITTENS OPEN '26 SEASON WITH VANDERBILT FROSH AT NASHVILLE SATURDAY

(By JIMMY MILLER)

While the Wildcats are trying their strength against the Generals of Washington and Lee on Stoll Field a week from tomorrow the Kittens will be in Nashville battling the yearling squad of Vanderbilt.

Coach Ray Eklund says that the Vanderbilt scouts went out during the summer and rounded up some of the best high and prep school material in the South and that from advance reports they will prove a worthy foe for the Kittens of 1926 who bid fair to have the greatest frosh team since 1922 when they won the Southern championship.

The Kittens, in scrimmaging against the varsity, have shown great possibilities. On Tuesday afternoon while working at a disadvantage in using Indiana plays against the varsity they exhibited power of attack which may prove disastrous to several yearling teams before the season is over.

In the backfield there is a wealth of material, none of it so outstanding as to merit a certain berth on the first string lineup. McIntosh, a hard driving fullback who hails from Evansville, Ind., is showing up well, as are Thomas, halfback, from Owensboro; Mauzy, diminutive quarter from Morganfield; McVey, a Paris product who plays halfback, and several others who are exhibiting an excellent brand of football.

Irvine Jeffries, the Manual flash, is the nearest sure thing proposition of the squad. The Louisville boy did not engage in the Tuesday scrimmage but the honor of the Kentucky metropolis was capably upheld by the work of Harvey Stone and Bob Miller whose work was outstanding in the line.

Don Whitehead, of Harlan, who is aspiring to a position as end, is playing a bang-up game and is possibly the most deadly tackler on the squad. Time after time in practice he has run down under punts, eluded the defensive ends and downed the back carrying the ball in his tracks.

With another week of scrimmaging against the varsity under their belts, the Kittens should begin to look like a football team. If they are able to whip Vandy next Saturday then the sideline coaches will be forced to admit that they look good enough.

MARYVILLE DEFEATED, 25-0, IN INITIAL GAME

RESERVES SHOW FINE; OFFENSE IS FLASHY, POLISHED

Last Saturday afternoon on Stoll field a well-coached Wildcat football team tore the Maryville Highlanders' defense into shreds and scored a 25-0 victory in the initial game of the season. The game was slow, sluggish, and without thrills except when the varsity backfield turned loose some part of its potential strength. Thirty players were used by Coach Murphy and the varsity played only half of the game.

Last year Maryville played Kentucky in the first game and almost defeated the Wildcats with the same team that played last Saturday. According to reports from Tennessee the team was more improved although to a competent critic who witnessed the game the Highlanders displayed little knowledge of football and had few effective plays.

Jenkins went over for the first touchdown early in the first quarter and from that time on if the 'Cats had chosen to loose the full fury of their attack they could easily have scored many more touchdowns. Indiana and Washington and Lee scouts were in the stands so only a few crossbucks and forward pass plays were used. For the most part Captain Smith and his cohorts played straight football and with so much force that Coach Murphy utilized two quarters in giving his sophomore substitutes a little necessary experience. Captain Smith, Ellis, Ross and Jenkins formed the backfield which has been greatly praised since the game. They executed Coach Murphy's shift with perfect rhythm and ran interference in the same manner.

In the line Pence, Wert and Glib were the main factors in the victory. However, the ability of Creech, Edwards, Schulte, Belt and Phipps is attested by Maryville's noticable lack of first downs—three. Kentucky made 18 first downs.

Following is the line-up and summary:

Maryville (0)	Pos. Kentucky (25)
Hunt	L.E. Glib
Harvey	L.T. Creech
Holland	L.G. Belt
Stone	C. Pence
G. Dunn	R.G. Wert
Brock	R.T. F. Phipps
Cartwright (c)	R.E. Schulte
Davis	Q.B. Jenkins
Clemens	L.H. Smith
McCall	R.H. Ellis
Byrd	F.B. Ross

Score by quarters:
Kentucky 6 12 0 7—25

Substitutions: Maryville—Gann for Brock; Biggs for Harvey; Morton for Biggs; Gann for G. Dunn; Taylor for Hunt; G. Crawford for Holland; Smith for J. Crawford.
Kentucky—Ropke for Creech; Portwood for Ellis; Scott for Belt; Waddell for Schulte; Edwards for F. Phipps; Knadler for Jenkins; T. Phipps for Ross; Dees for Pence; Pih for Smith; Franklin for Glib; Belt for Wert; Farmer for Belt; Summers for Creech; Kavanaugh for Wert; Ott (despite his broken finger) for Ross, who went back in for Phipps when all of the regulars re-entered the game in the last quarter.

Curry for Glib; Garnet for Farmer; Wigglesworth for F. Phipps; Crowder for Kavanaugh.

Touchdowns—Jenkins, Ross, Smith. E. Ropke missed two drop kicks for extra points after goal; Ross made one and missed one place kick for the point.

Referee, Lane, Kenyon; umpire, Head, Louisville; head linesman, Kenton, Yale.

W. A. A. NOTES

(By PAULINE ADAMS)

At a meeting of the Women's Athletic Association in the women's gym, on Monday afternoon, Mabel Hill, president, gave a brief history of the association. Virginia Robinson talked on the point system and the system of awards. Organization of sports, practices and so forth were touched upon by Miss Skinner.

You'll be interested to know, we are sure, that when the W.A.A. was founded in 1921, with 100 charter members, its first president was Miss Sarah Blanding, then attending school here, and now our dean of women. With cooperation, work and enthusiasm, it has grown until it now embraces eight sports instead of the two, basketball and track, with which it started.

And now that this report is "off our hands" so to speak, we just can't keep the excitement from bubbling up over the prospect of camp this week-end. THIS week-end. At Swallow's Nest and the crowd will leave Boyd hall Saturday afternoon at 1:30. And that excited feeling we spoke about—you see—we've been on W. A. A. camps before and hence, we KNOW.

By the way, there are registration cards for membership to W. A. A. which is open now, and Miss Mable Hill, Patt hall, Miss Skinner, athletic instructor, or any member of the council will gladly give you one upon request.

And don't forget—Camp!

happen and let them turn out as they may. The Crimson Tide must not be as weak as most everybody in these parts thought for. The secret? Could it possibly be Wallace Wade, who was refused a coaching offer at the University of Kentucky?

We cannot help but admire the ability of Waddell and Franklin, substitute ends, who last Saturday tore all-fire out of Maryville's backfield every time they started around ends, and sometimes caught them flat-footed before they even got started on their ground gaining journeys. Suffice to say, this revelation was more than pleasing to Coach Murphy who now has four ends—Schulte and Glib being the other two—who are capable of taking care of their positions most any old time. We might add that the former were not boxed once during the entire time they saw action and this is something to say about two boys who are playing their first varsity ball.

We had just about forgotten the freshmen, who open their 1926 season with Vanderbilt Rats a week from tomorrow. Many and many an argument will be settled by this game, too. The Kittens are not to be sneezed at this year and some line on the ability which they are supposed to have will be gleaned from the opening fray. Most everybody is of the opinion that Irvine Jeffries was always just about two thinks ahead of any other quarterback he ever met in his high school games—and he met the best in the United States—and somehow we have a hunch that he will be just about two touchdowns ahead of his opponents after everything has been settled this year.

In regard to this pass rule, a five yard penalty is placed on a second and third incomplete pass within the same series of downs, except on the fourth down when the ball goes to the opponents. But this will not affect the game seriously at all. It will not prevent a team from trying forward passes; it does not penalize completed forward passes, either behind the line of scrimmage or beyond the line of scrimmage; it does not seriously affect the strategy of the game, if anything, in my opinion, it adds slightly to it.

The rule should tend to encourage perfection in forward pass play, not only in passing and receiving but also in accuracy of timing and in selection of the best types of passes to use. The rule not infrequently will penalize the hitherto unpunished throwing of the ball by intentionally throwing it into open spaces when the passer sees his receivers are covered. While it does not prevent a desperate gambling on chance, it will very properly place a small penalty on such efforts when not successful.

The worst which can happen to any team that makes three incomplete forward passes on the first, second and third downs will be to kick on fourth down from a point ten yards farther back than when the ball was first put into play, which is not an excessive penalty for the use of such tactics. Kentucky's attack was not hampered the least bit by the thought of the new rule, as they went right ahead to make gains on the first try which they made at flipping the ball to a galloping Wildcat.

Someone brings the news that Georgetown was not so well satisfied with the result of the Rose Poly game Saturday. The score, 31 to 3, would indicate that the Tigers are not a 50 point team as the Scott county optimists think for. They will learn with experience that playing freshman and varsity football are two entirely different things. Of course, Georgetown will probably go through they brag about after they have beaten the season undefeated with such a on Rose Poly, Union, Pennsylvania, two by four schedule, but what can Eastern Normal et al?

university in payment of their fees which were returned marked "no funds" or "no accounts." There were two or three errors due to mistakes at the banks. It has been necessary to send notices to these students that failure to make good their payments would result in their dismissal from the university.

This is a bad situation that can no longer be tolerated as it is bad morally and ethically and there ought to be no necessity of the university being faced with a problem of this kind. If it continues the board of trustees will undoubtedly be compelled to require payments either in cash or by bank draft. Students can correct this situation without difficulty and its continuance is a violation of the law and certainly likely to result in loose financial habits on the part of students which the university can not tolerate.

I shall be obliged if you will give this matter publicity in the columns of The Kernel.

Very truly yours,
Frank L. McVey,
President.

tucky Romeo who values his technique above all things.

As far as that goes, even the books could be used for something besides highbrow atmosphere. It is to be hoped that the lovers will not need them for missiles; but all freshmen are advised to read up on current events or memorize poems and epigrams occasionally to astound college profs and raise scholastic standards thereby. A bit of Plato quoted with intense expression at an appropriate time might raise an indifferent grade to an excellent one.

Other schools have varied and extensive uses for their libraries. The writer would suggest that all freshman girls should go to the library at all vacant periods, in this way giving campus beaus an opportunity to look over the year's crop in an hour or two. Dates, of course, could be easily and conveniently made and the plan would add great impetus to university social life.

Naturally, if all the ideas suggested in this treatise were followed, the addition of several annexes to the vicinity of the library and the installation of a central telephone exchange in the library proper would be necessitated; but these problems could be efficiently dealt with when the occasion arose. Wake up, men and women of the University of Kentucky, and take advantage of the facilities which the library offers for your pleasure!

another warning has been issued by the annual staff. Wolfe will be on the campus only a short time and it is imperative that seniors, fraternity and sorority members, members of clubs and honoraries have their pictures taken at once if they expect them to appear on the pages devoted to their various activities, since the last few days of the photographer's play will be devoted to taking pictures of the military units, football group pictures, pictures of class officers which must necessarily be delayed until elections can be held, platoons formed, etc.

Proofs of pictures already taken are beginning to arrive and will be posted according to number on the bulletin board in the basement of the men's gymnasium.

Staff Not Complete

The entire annual staff has not yet been appointed and very probably will not be complete until after the photographic work for the book is finished. The editor, Miss Dorothy Stebbins, who is a member of the Kappa Delta sorority, and the business manager, Fountain Raymer, who is an engineer and a member of the Tri-angel fraternity, began work on the plans for the book early in the summer and have been working steadily to make this year's annual a success. Their plans, however, cannot be carried out without the cooperation of every member of the university. The annual is a pictorial history of an entire school year's events and its aim cannot be accomplished without the wholehearted support and assistance of the university.

On next Friday ballot boxes will be placed in the main building of each college and members of the student council will be in charge of the boxes to see that the elections are conducted properly. Every student is urged by the council to vote in order that the officers selected may be representative of the entire classes.

CELEBRATES JUBILEE

to be of substantial aid to the afflicted people of Lexington, and while yet of an age when the lighter things of entertainment meant much to men and women, she denied herself many hours of pleasure to work with the board of trustees of the old Good Samaritan hospital and a monument to her interest is the present establishment on South Limestone street with its modern, comfortable home for nurses. When the new Good Samaritan hospital was built, she became chairman of the house committee, secretary of the board of trustees, and of the executive board. Her generous-kindness has cheered the saddened hour for many patients and has brought comfort to all attending. Mrs. Norwood affiliated with Christ Church Cathedral when she came to Lexington 25 years ago, and has served as president in both the Altar Guild and the Woman Auxiliary. The university also has come in for a large part of Mrs. Norwood's time, for she was a charter member of the Woman's club of the university in 1909 and presided over its destiny as president from 1914 to 1916. She retired as president last May, having completed a second term of two of the most successful years in the history of the organization.

Head of Mining Industry

Professor Norwood stands today at the head of the mining industry of Kentucky. He has been the inspiration of every effort on the part of the state miners toward organization and improvement. He it was who encouraged the owners and operators to improve mine conditions, ventilation, and to procure the enactment of the compensation laws. The present status of the state geological survey is due to his legislative efforts for money for the investigation. He it was who many years ago tried to interest Kentucky in the development of oil, coal, clay and minerals which he believed to be in the soil of the state. It was after he had made a trip across Kentucky in 1878 and 1879, from the Mississippi to Pound Gap, studying the mineral deposit, and the mines, that he accepted the position of assistant geologist of the state. Before going to Colorado in 1881 to assume the management of the Sonora Mining Company, in Ouray county, which operated large silver mines, Professor Norwood taught sciences in Bethel

College, at Russellville.

In 1884 he returned to Kentucky and became inspector of mines upon the persuasion of his friend that he could be of help to the miners. He had previously worked hard to get the law creating the office. He retained the office until 1897, as Kentucky's first chief inspector of mines.

In 1897 he went to Georgia, where he was in charge of gold mining development in the state. He remained in Georgia until 1899, when he accepted the position of chief engineer of the St. Bernard Mining Company in Hopkins county, Ky. In 1902 he was made dean of the College of Mining of the University of Kentucky, which college he organized after being appointed to the position. This college is now a department of the College of Engineering. In addition to serving as dean of the College of Mines, Dean Norwood acted as chief inspector of mines of Kentucky from 1902 until 1918 and as curator of the geological survey from 1902 until 1904. When the State geological survey was reorganized in 1904 he was named as its director and he served in this capacity until 1912.

Dean Norwood was superintendent of the Kentucky mineral exhibit at the St. Louis Exposition in 1903 and personally procured all the material for the exhibit. This exhibit is said to have attracted as much attention as any one exhibit at the exposition. During the year when Dean Norwood was head of the College of Mines, director of the geological survey and chief inspector of mines he worked day and night several times a week in order to handle his many duties. He conducted his survey and inspection work in the summer months and made his reports during the winter in addition to conducting his work at the university.

Tells of Early Difficulties

Professor Norwood describes these first days on the campus with the delightful charm that has made his conversation so enjoyable to all who have the opportunity to talk about the pioneer days of each department in the university. "Just $100," said Professor Norwood, "was allowed for the first mining laboratory, and I had no class room at all in which to instruct my first student. Round and round I went with Professor Patterson before he could see his way clear to allow the second $125 which, together with the wood of the old cannon house behind the Science building, went to enlarge the laboratory into what was then known on the campus as "the twins" laboratory. I moved from one lecture room to another before the present mining building was erected. The enrollment of course has increased annually and several years ago it was necessary for us to add the miners six weeks course for practical workers. I have been extremely happy in my connections here at the university. I note with great pleasure the improvement in the class of boys and girls that are now coming to the institution. Not that the old students were inferior, as I count many of my best friends among them, but when the enrollment continued to increase yearly in such great numbers, one would hardly expect such quality to prevail as we now have. Yes, I have served with five presidents and my associates in the engineering faculty have been wonderful to me. I predicted, when Dr. McVey came to Kentucky, that he would develop a great institution and he is doing it. I was one of those who requested him not to leave Kentucky when the opportunity came to him from Missouri. We are happy, very, very happy."

Professor has been a member of the American Institute of Mining Engineers since 1874 and the student branch of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers, which is the present title of the old organization, was named "The Norwood Society," in honor of Professor Norwood, in 1916 by the students of the Mining College of the university. The tribute to the beloved educator was the desire of the students for many years before, but in his modesty Professor Norwood always declined the honor and it was finally done without his knowledge.

In spite of his insisting that the rank and file was his height, Professor Norwood has served as president of the Kentucky Mining Institute, and throughout its existence he was the heart and soul of the organization.

Honored by Lodges

The Blue Grass Scottish Rites Club honored him with its leadership through several terms and he is now president of the Masonic Club of Lexington. Lexington Lodge No. 1; Lexington Royal Arch Chapter, No. 1; Washington Council, No. 1; R. and S. M. and Webb Commandery No. 2 K. T., have selected Professor Norwood as their leader on several occasions. By virtue of the honors showered upon him by the local Masonic organizations, the mother organization since the separation of Kentucky from Virginia, Professor Norwood is now a member of the Grand Lodge of Masons.
